PROFILE

Ever since I was a child I have always felt attracted to and passionate about the world of video games and animations. I was fascinated to think that everything I was watching was not real, but had been created by people like me, with enough knowledge for it. That's why I decided to dedicate my life to learning about it, and not only that, to improving it with my own skills someday.

I always try to discover new things and I never take anything for granted, there is always something to improve and something to learn.

My main strength is that I never give up, no matter how many failures it takes.
